

ORNITHOLOGY

New Issue Listings

by Glenn G. Mertz

In the last Ornithology listing I posed a few questions to the members regarding their preference regarding the use of the bird number that has been used for a number of years and whether it was an important piece of information that was being used by the members who collect birds on stamps. I only had about five replies from the members who collect birds on stamps, and except for one email, the other replies do not make use of it, don't know what it is, or have no use for the numbering system. Therefore, this will be the last listing that will make use of the numbering system. If the remaining members, who didn't response to this particular question, feel that an important piece of information is now missing from the listing, you can make your reasons known to me, but I would need a sufficient number requesting this to be restored to the listings to warrant going forward again with the bird number. I have received the new Clements book, Checklist Of Birds of the World, 6th edition, now published by Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology, which follows the same format of Clements' 5th Edition. It now lists 9,930 bird species worldwide.

1338l Let Q 083.018 Pauraque, Nyctidromus albicollis (Airmail) (Value at time of Issue was 17.50sr)

 This would be a NEW bird to the Aviary but Chuck Braun states that the issue by Tanzania, Scott#1561c was, a Mottled Owl, not a Mottled Wood-Owl, Strix ocellata, as was shown and listed on the stamp. An email was sent to Kjell at his Birdtheme website, asking for a verification of the two in question. Both Chuck and Kjell agree that it is a Mottled Owl, both on the Tanzania stamp and on this Suriname stamp. Because it was not Written up in the Aviary when issued on the Tanzania stamp, Chuck will add this to the Aviary.

This bird was NEW to the Aviary when issued in 1991, but because the set was not written up, it never made it to the Aviary. It was subsequently shown on a Togo set issued In 1996—V47(1), page 44, Scott# 1788, but was not listed as NEW at the time either.

Chuck Braun has written it up for this issue.
