

MAMMALIA

A few words of explanation are required regarding several of the identifications in the following listing.

On the Guyana Bats issue, the species on the sheetlet of 4 are identified in full on the stamps, but on the souvenir sheet, only the genus name is given - Carollia species. Differences between Carollia species appear to be mainly in tail and forearm lengths and as these are not visible on the sheet, the species depicted could be any of the genus members. I have therefore based the identification on distribution as being the only species that occurs in Guyana.

On the 2003 Chile issue, the Pampas Fox, Pseudoalopex gymnocerus, would seem to be a new species, but this species now includes the Argentine Grey Fox, Pseudoalopex griseus, which has appeared on stamps. Also by way of explanation, the stamp is labelled Zorro Darwin, which refers to the fox seen on Chiloe Island, Chile by Charles Darwin and later named as Darwin's Fox. It was given species status as Dusicyon fulvipes, but is now also included in Pseudoalopex gymnocerus, Pampas Fox.

Finally, I have had to admit defeat with the Australia kangaroo, for while the animals depicted are one of the larger Macropus species, the illustrations are too indistinct to give a species name.
