

MAMMALIA

Editor

Michael Prince, LM 868

I have noted just the one new species this time, a Squirrel Monkey species from Panama. There may well be a further one in the identifications, as in the backlog of Madagascar issues listed by Scott is a Night Monkey species. When these stamps were issued in 2001 there was only the one Night Monkey species, but with the advances in DNA genetics there are now considered to be either 6 or 8 species. The genus Aotus is now split into 2 groups, Grey-necked and Red-necked Night Monkeys and the animal depicted on the Madagascar value is one of the Red-necked group. This splitting of a species nearly always causes problems as there is little initial information available to readily identify the new species. I have therefore had to leave the stamp as unidentified at species level. Also, for the time being, I shall not be attempting to update identifications of previous species that have appeared on stamps.
